Who wants to wake up in the morning and start making breakfast in a freezing cold kitchen? Myson can help you get your day off to a flying start. But we can do much more for your kitchen than just warm it up.

In almost every home, the kitchen is the room where space is most at a premium. There are cookers, dishwashers, freezers and washing machines to fit in, plus sink units, worktops and as much storage as space will allow. Traditional radiators take up precious wall space and restrict design possibilities.

But now there's a solution.

Kickspace is a compact and efficient system which allows you the design freedom to create the kitchen of your dreams. It fits neatly into the dead space area of kitchen unit plinths, freeing wall space for additional units, appliances or other improvements.

You can choose from a variety of options. Hydronic models connect to your existing central heating system, replacing a standard radiator. Electric models are ideal where no pipework is easily accessible, and Duo models combine the two, giving you the best of both worlds.

There are two easy to operate controls on the front of the grille - a fan speed setting and a summer/winter switch. The summer setting provides a fan only option that provides a refreshing flow of air. Alternatively, you can opt for remote wall switches for extra control and convenience.

The grilles themselves are available in a variety of finishes to match almost any décor - the choice includes white, brown, black, brushed stainless steel, regal gold, chrome, aluminium and cream.

The Kickspace system has been designed for easy installation and every unit comes with the total reassurance of our full customer care package including an in-house service team, technical helpline and spare parts service.
